"Do Something That Makes You Happy Every Day"

I came across this quote yesterday while grocery shopping. I have never felt inspired while grocery shopping, but hey, I'll take it where I can get it!

As I cruised the store aisles, I thought about what I do that makes me happy. Surprisingly, one of my favorite things is cleaning up my space. Whether it's my work space or home space, cleaning it up frees my mind. Uncluttering that space also unclutters my brain in the process, and I feel open. I can think again! Not only can I think again, but I also find that my creative juices start flowing, and the ideas I've been wrestling with all fall into line.

The same brain clearing happens when I do something fun and relaxing, such as trying a new restaurant with my husband, taking a hike with my dogs or hopping in the car for a daycation. All those adventures make me happy. They feed my soul.

Color also makes me happy. Spring is the best time for loads of bright colors in Texas. I love seeing the beautiful green grass, the blankets of flowers and the trees in bloom. All that color makes my heart sing! It inspires me to add pops of color to my wardrobe. After all, if color can do so much to enhance the landscape and my mood, surely it can spruce up my closet full of blacks and greys.

Enjoy this beautiful, photo-filled issue all about vacations and getaways. I hope you'll be inspired to go somewhere fun, try something new and do something that makes you happy.

Hasta la vista!

Repeat Win

Dealership's Profits Again Going to Roddick Foundation

The Andy Roddick Foundation (ARF) and Charity Motorsports have teamed for another grand slam victory for kids.

After a successful partnership with the nonprofit organization last year, Gregg Burt has announced that he is once again in 2019 donating all his dealership's profit to ARF. Along with these profits, ARF is the beneficiary of Charity Motorsports' annual auction, planned for later this year.

Burt and his crew at Charity Motorsports are passionate about the programs and services that the foundation offers that use the time that children spend outside the classroom and turn it into real opportunities for learning and growth. They admire how ARF engages children with high-quality learning and enrichment experiences after school and during the summer—often when children who feel left out and forgotten need guidance and intervention the most.

Through this unique partnership, Charity Motorsports and ARF hope to change the way businesses and nonprofits work together to bring change to their local community.

After Burt retired from a successful entrepreneurial career, the longtime Lakeway-area resident started Charity Motorsports in 2016 to merge his love of cars with his love of giving back to his community. The family-owned and -operated car dealership only sells well-maintained, low-mileage, previously owned newer-model luxury cars, SUVs and trucks and older rare and vintage vehicles.

Charity Motorsports is located at 3205 Ranch Road 620 North and at charitymotorsports.com.

Lakeway Marina Makes Lake Daycations a Breeze

A day on Lake Travis makes for a perfect daycation, and Lakeway Marina is ready to outfit your outing.

Whether you're spending the day solo or with a gaggle of friends or family members, the marina can hook you up with just the right watercraft. In its fleet of rentals are Yamaha two-person WaveRunners, eight-passenger runabouts, 10-passenger pontoons and even a pair of 70-passenger party barges. The marina even throws in ice chests and ice with pontoon and runabout rentals.

Looking to do some Highland Lakes-style skiing? Lakeway Marina offers a rental package with a nine-passenger ski boat, a driver and water skis, a wakeboard, towable tube, surfboard and kneeboard. Maybe you aim for something with less horsepower or an easier pace. The marina has you covered with paddleboard and kayak rentals and even fishing guide services.

Lemon Leaf Florist Expands

Not even a year after opening a design studio and retail space, Lemon Leaf Florist is on the grow.

To keep up with demand for its floral creations from nuptial couples, corporate clients and many more customers, the Lakeway business has added two new team members. Joining owner and big sister Sydney and creative director and mom Kimberly is Elise Anne Grgurich, who has taken on the roles of event manager and designer. She had formal floral training in London and Santorini, Greece, and she has a great spirit for thinking outside the box.

"Elise Anne is the decision maker in the studio," says Sydney of her sister. "When we get caught up in analysis paralysis, she jumps in with gut-instinct decisions that take us down the right design path."

The second member of the team hasn't yet, at press time, made her debut—and won't really be helping create floral masterpieces right away. Sydney is expecting her first child, a girl, who's been dubbed Baby Lemon. The whole of Team Lemon Leaf is delighted, and the owner and mom-to-be wonders, "How many of our next photoshoots will incorporate a baby with all those beautiful flowers?"

Lemon Leaf Florist is located at 1927 Lohman's Crossing, Suite 100B, and online at lemonleafflorist.com.

Awards Cascade

Pool Designer's Work Honored

Cascade Custom Pools kicked off 2019 with a splash when it took home the prestigious Best of Show award at the 2019 Southwest Region Pool & Spa Show, held in San Antonio in late January.

"We've won many design awards over the years, but this is our first Best of Show, which is the highest honor in the competition," says owner Hank Thompson. He says Cascade Custom Pools' experienced staff and their close attention to detail were key to winning this top honor from The Association of Pool & Spa Professionals (APSP).

In addition to the Best of Show award, the company also claimed at the regional trade show for pool industry professionals a Gold Award in the Residential Concrete Pools Valued at $75,000 and Over category, specifically in the Freeform 451 sq. ft. to 750 sq. ft. subcategory.

While attending the International Pool | Spa | Patio Expo held by APSP in Las Vegas in November 2018, Cascade garnered a Silver in the association's International Awards of Excellence for geometric pools 601 sq. ft. or larger as well as a Bronze in the vanishing-edge pools 600 sq. ft. or smaller category.

Thompson and family have been part of the Lake Travis community since 1982. This home-grown custom pool company now has two generations of designers as son TJ carries forward its creative design and high-quality construction to suit each client's needs.

Foundation Gala Aids Lake Travis Students and Teachers

Supporters of the Lake Travis Independent School District came out in their finest red, black and silver and gave generously at the annual Lake Travis Education Foundation Gala held at the JW Marriott Austin in early March.

The theme for 2019 was A Black & Red Ball. Attendees gave generously to the education fund since all monies raised go to Lake Travis ISD schools. The funds are especially needed because the district is sending some $50 million of local tax revenues to the state for redistribution this school year.

The gala began with a glamorous cocktail reception and silent auction of items donated by local businesses. A live auction took place during program. On the auction block were some extraordinary entertainment packages, such as ticket packages to see Hamilton on Broadway, a 10-night adventure tour for four to Africa and other luxury getaway experiences.

The evening wrapped with a performance by Tracy Byrd, a Billboard Top 100 country music recording artist.

Annual Luncheon Raises Funds for Inclusive School

On the day after Valentine's Day, The Rise School of Austin held its 12th annual Heart & Soul Luncheon at the Fairmont Austin hotel. The excitement for the event was so big that the school for the first time ever introduced a gallery-level ticket option to meet demand.

Much of the interest in the luncheon focused on the guest speaker, Megan Bomgaars, and for good reason. The busy twentysomething inclusion activist founded the Don't Limit Me campaign with a video that went viral in 2013. She's also part of the cast of Born This Way on A&E Network, the official spokesperson for Artpop Cosmetics as well as a model and fashion designer with her own line, megology. She brought to the luncheon her "Don't Limit Me" message of living life without limits. The activist-designer also brought with her items from her new megology capsule collection with Sanrio, the company behind Hello Kitty and her friends.

The Sanrio X megology t-shirts featuring Hello Kitty and Badtz-Maru and inspirational slogans were on display by some student-models as they took to the runway during the luncheon's fashion show. Others sported items from megology's recent collaboration with Warner Brothers featuring popular DC Comics superheroes. The models strutted the catwalk accompanied by a parent or other family member, and the 285 guests were delighted by the show.

The Heart & Soul Luncheon is a key fundraiser for The Rise School. To that end its other activities included a silent auction of high-end jewelry from such designers as David Yurman and Eliza Page, along with a a stunning collection of vintage, designer and one-of-a-kind handbags from such labels as Coach, Tiffany & Co. and Yves Saint Laurent and from local clothiers By George, Julian Gold and Estilo, among others.

Proceeds from the event help the school continue its aim to offer to the Austin community inclusive early childhood education for students of all abilities ages 14 months to 5 years. About half of the more than 80 students currently enrolled have developmental delays, and teachers work together with physical therapy, speech, music and other therapists to help all children learn, grow and thrive using developmentally appropriate curriculum and programs. Some 65 percent of families with one or more children attending The Rise School receive financial aid to cover tuition. Opened in time for the 2003-2004 school year, it is one of seven Rise Schools in the U.S.

ACC Rocks ACL LIVE

Lukas Nelson Headlines Charity Concert

It's not unusual for the Austin City Limits Live at the Moody Theater venue on any given Saturday night to be energized by the sounds of great music being made. The same held true on February 9th, when music was made to benefit not one but three Austin-area charities.

The Austin Cares Concert was the first event of the 2019 C4AC Music Series from the Concerts 4 Austin Charities organization. Two of the beneficiaries work primarily with children and families. Step Onward Foundation offers housing and other services and resources to families at risk of homelessness due to their children's medical bills as well as to young adults who were once homeless. Superhero Kids provides financial aid to help families cover nonmedical expenses when their children are being treated at the Children's Blood and Cancer Center of Central Texas.

The third beneficiary was Health Alliance for Austin Musicians (HAAM), which helps Austin-area working musicians obtain affordable health care services. Since its founding in 2005, HAAM has assisted nearly 5,000 musicians.

The evening began with a VIP reception and bidding on a host of silent auction items. Austin singer-songwriter Ginger Leigh served both as emcee and as a performer. Other guest performers included Pike & Sutton, the latest endeavor from Patrice Pike and Wayne Sutton.

Practically no fundraising event in Austin is complete without a live auction led by Heath Hale and his cowboy auctioneers. During the evening's program, the auction team put on a show driving up bids for multiple signed guitars and other great items.

As the opening act, The Texas K.G.B. served up its ear-pleasing take on Americana. Then Lukas Nelson & Promise of the Real took the stage to a sold-out house.

EVERYBODY COMES TO CASABLANCA

For the first time in its 26 years, the CASAblanca Gala raised more than $1 million for CASA of Travis County. Some 900 supporters gathered in early February in the JW Grand Ballroom at the JW Marriott Austin for an evening of fine dining and spectacular entertainment from acrobats and aerialists followed by dancing and casino-style gaming, all to benefit this organization that represents juvenile victims of abuse and neglect in the court system.

Pack Like a Pro with These Tips

The advertising genius behind Cunard cruise line's slogan "Getting there is half the fun!" clearly never had to figure out what to pack for a getaway—nor worry about baggage allowances and fees. After all, you don't want to pack too much, too little or the entirely wrong thing. The stress of packing can be right up there with the stress of getting through security, so Mallary Carroll, the designer behind the SBJ Austin clothing line and the owner of Good Company women's clothier, offers some packing advice.

What are the staple pieces for any vacation?
Travelers need the perfect pair of denim, shorts, a swimsuit and silk or cotton pajamas. I also love a great jacket for layering and am all about that button-down shirt you can throw on over everything. A button-down can elevate a casual outfit. I recommend 100-percent cotton, and pack one long-sleeve shirt and one short-sleeve shirt.

I love natural materials such as cotton in the summer and cashmere in the winter. In fact, cotton is for everyday, year-round wear. I love a great knit cotton sweater and a cotton pant.

What items do people notoriously pack but don't need?
You don't need as many shoes as you think you do. I only travel with one or two pairs.

If I want to pack only one pair of shoes, what style or type should I choose?
Go for a genuine leather sandal with a zipper in the back that's a cross between a sandal and a bootie with a flat heel. It is extremely comfortable for travel. I also love the Itaca 5 sandal from Officine Creative shoes. It covers all the bases from sandal to bootie.

What is your go-to accessory for any vacation?
My go-to accessory for vacation is a gold cuff bracelet. A cuff looks great with denim and a t-shirt or a nice dress. Its versatility is endless, and it's the only piece of jewelry I even think about packing.

How can I look chic at the airport and still being comfortable?
Textiles made with stretch is how I stay comfortable while looking great. I like a great cropped pant with a kick flare, which is universally flattering and very on-trend. I could sleep in these they're so comfortable. You can wear them on the plane and then go straight to dinner.

Where is your favorite place to travel?
I lived on Nantucket Island for 10 years, so I always love going back to visit. I also just took a trip to Anguilla that I'm still dreaming about.

Good Company is located at 918 W 12th and online at goodcompany.shop.

Fake It, Don't Bake It

Get That Sun-Kissed Glow Without Sun Damage

Maybe you love that suntanned look but know better than to go outside without being slathered in sunblock. Cosmetics makers now offer a trove of self-tanning lotions and potions that won't leave you Day-Glo orange, but which product to choose? Austin's own makeup vlogger Lisa Jauregui demystifies the art of successful self-tanning.

How do I know what shade of self-tanner is right for my skin tone?

I recommend making your decision based on the tone your skin takes when you tan. If your skin tends to burn rather than tan, go with your natural skin tone. Choose a product with an undertone deep enough to give you the tan that you desire but that still looks natural. If your complexion is fair, choose the lightest self-tanner, and if your complexion is medium, go with a product with a medium or dark tone.

Do some formulations—lotions, mousse, sprays—work better for certain skin types?

It's really a matter of preference, but you should know the differences amongst them so that you can decide which you prefer. Lotions typically moisturize, and the color tends to develop gradually with multiple applications. Conversely, mousse and spray products work faster, so within hours you'll notice your skin appears tan. You also don't need to apply these products daily to maintain the color, which can last a few days or longer.

Tanning water blends into the skin quickly and effortlessly, but be careful—it can have quick, dramatic results, so a little bit goes a long way. I recommend applying a sheer layer the first time to see the level of impact. Tanning wipes are easy and less messy to use. However, they can be the more expensive per application.

If you choose a product you must apply by hand, wear a tanning mitt or wash your hands with warm soap and water immediately afterward to avoid color buildup between your fingers.

What's the best type of product to use if I'm short on time?

Mousse as well as sprays and mists generally have the fastest results. Wait at least 10 minutes before dressing so that the product can completely dry.

Do I have to exfoliate before using a self-tanner?

Exfoliating beforehand helps ensure you achieve a more natural look. Since shaving is a form of exfoliation, you don't have to both shave and exfoliate your legs before applying a self-tanning product. If you plan to apply self-tanner to other >> areas, especially the face, exfoliate first to remove flaking skin so that the resulting color isn't uneven or splotchy.

Avoid the Day-Glo orange look by choosing a self-tanning product with an undertone deep enough to give you the tan that you desire but that still looks natural.

Why should I use a different self-tanning product for my face?
Self-tanning products designed for the face generally provide a much softer, subtler tan. However, if you intend to apply foundation as usual, then facial self-tanner is unnecessary.

What's the best way to extend the life of my tan? How can I ensure I don't sweat it off?
Prepping your skin by exfoliating is one of the best ways to extend the life of your tan. Avoid sweating or getting wet for the first eight hours after application since the product needs time to dry and activate on the skin. Lastly, keeping your skin moisturized can help extend the life of your tan.

Once the color is set, a quality self-tanner really shouldn't fade or rub off when you sweat. Look for "sweat resistant" or "water resistant" on the product label if you're concerned your tan will vanish after one trip to the gym.

Should I use a bronzer on my face if I use a self-tanner?
Yes, you want to match your tan with your makeup, so a bronzer is necessary. I recommend sweeping a bronzer on the cheek bones, across the nose and on the temples to create a sun-kissed face.

What's the shelf life of self-tanner?
In general the shelf life of self-tanners is about a year. If you have a product left over from last summer, check the bottom of the bottle or tube. Many products have a small opened jar icon at the bottom of the package. The number inside the icon indicates for how many months after you open the product that you can expect optimal performance.

A family dentist office can be fun! My Westlake Smile Designs team knows how to do that while taking care of your family and your smile. You will soon find out what it is like to be in an environment that is not rushed or filled with high pressure treatment options. We take pride in our small practice and personal attention.

I have performed countless dental "cosmetic makeovers." With our amazing technology, I am able to make veneers and crowns in one visit. No temporaries, and processed while you wait.

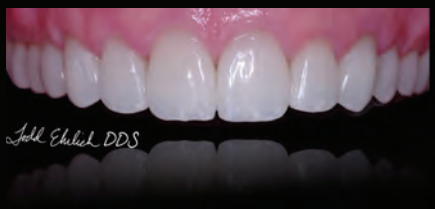

I personally make every restoration at our office with your goals in mind.

I've guided more people out of veneers than into them. Many people know that they don't like their smile, but really don't know what the real problem is. We do a thorough exam, of course, but we look for the real areas for making your smile look it's best. It may NOT be veneers, but orthodontics, or simple whitening. We are very conservative in our approach, so if you need a second opinion, or you've only been told veneers are the solution, let us take a look.

This year is the year to finally take that luxury vacation you've always dreamed of. The one for which you spare no expense (within reason). The one that lets you forget your worries and cares because it's the ultimate combination of luxury and escape.

If you're just not sure where to go but know for sure you want to indulge, then let these options inspire you.

IF IT'S GOOD ENOUGH FOR GEORGE AND AMAL....

For the ultimate immersion in culture, history and glamour, head to Italy's Amalfi Coast.

"There are so many pretty hotels there," raves Robert Matuszewski, owner of By Design Travel, which specializes in luxury travel. He names Le Sirenuse and Belmond Hotel Caruso as two favorites.

Le Sirenuse overlooks the bay of Positano. Visitors are privy to spectacular views of the Tyrrhenian Sea and easy access to the cities of Pompeii, Amalfi and more. Rooms are decorated in a contemporary take on traditional Italian design, and most feature a private balcony or terrace. You'll likely find yourself agreeing with John Steinbeck when he wrote of Positano in 1953, "It is a dream place that isn't quite real when you are there and becomes beckoningly real after you have gone."

About an hour's drive east is Belmond Hotel Caruso. Situated in an 11th-century palace set on a seaside cliff and bursting with antiques and art by the Old Masters, it is an attraction all its own. If objets d'art are not your thing, then you can spend your days hiking trails, perusing local vineyards and lemon groves or exploring the ruins of Basilica di Sant'Eustachio in nearby Scala. After your adventures catch some shut-eye in one of the Belmond's elegantly appointed rooms decorated in classic Neapolitan style.

MAUI WOWIE

Prefer the ocean to the sea? Then head to Maui. The second largest of the Hawai'ian Islands offers something for practically everyone with its lush rainforests, world-renown beaches and the awe-inspiring Haleakalā, the shield volcano that can be seen from just about any point on the island. It's no wonder the island offers some choice luxury resort hotels.

One of them is The Ritz-Carlton, Kapalua. Book a stay here and enjoy such excursions as sunset sails, ATV tours, whale-watching and luaus. You can even book a private helicopter tour to experience Maui from the best vantage point. Suites and guest rooms with garden views and with ocean views are available. So too are one- and two-bedroom residences.

Guests at the Fairmont Kea Lani, Maui hotel resort can expect contemporary design and sumptuous bedding in guest rooms. Some rooms offer views of the tropical garden, others of the expansive pools—and of course you can request a room with an ocean view. During your stay you can enjoy such activities as a massage at the spa, yoga classes and even hula and ukulele lessons before joining a walking tour to learn more about the stunning island and its plant life.

RED ROCK COUNTRY

A little bit closer to home (about 1,050 miles from Austin by car, about 875 miles by air), the alluring vermilion buttes of Sedona, Arizona, reach for the sky. Trails worn long ago into the landscape provide opportunities galore for hiking, biking, bird-watching, exploring and marveling at unparalleled views of the sunset.

"Looking at the red rocks at night is just glorious, and the skies are beautiful," says Matuszewski enthusiastically. "The food and amenities around the area are standout."

inertia, then The Enchantment Resort is a good choice. It offers visitors hiking, biking and trail running excursions and adventures day and night. Back at the resort you can work on your swing at Seven Canyons golf course, or luxuriate in a variety of treatments at the resort's Mii amo spa. After a day spent exploring, enjoy a relaxing night's sleep in a private casita with a built-in fireplace and a stunning view of Boynton Canyon.

Equally tempting are the luxury cottages along Oak Creek available at L'Auberge de Sedona. Depending on which cottage type you book, you can enjoy such amenities as a private deck, private outdoor cedar shower, cozy fireplace or oversized picture window to take in sweeping views of Giants Thumb, Elephant Rock and Snoopy Rock.

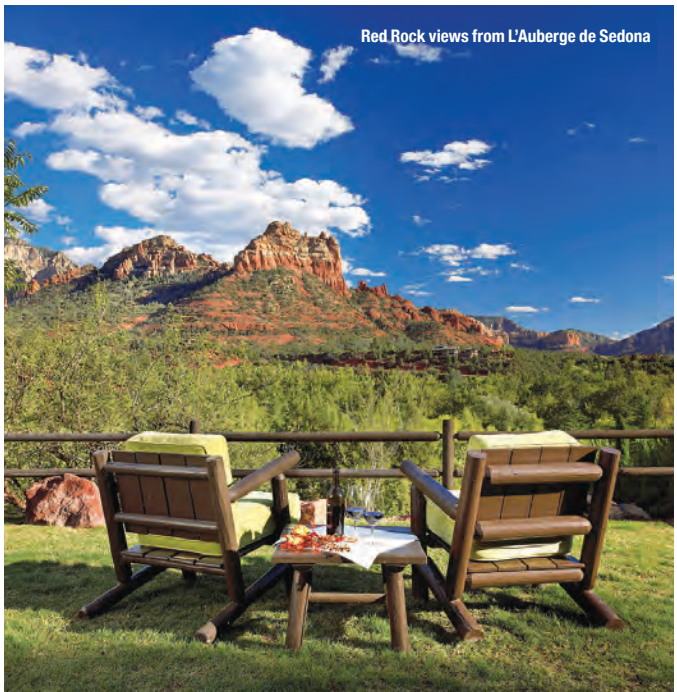

COLONIAL CHARM

Head south of the border to San Miguel de Allende in the central Mexican state of Guanajuato and take a step back in time as you take in the city's Spanish colonial architecture and other magnificent edifices that helped it be recognized as a UNESCO World Heritage Site. Shop at the Mercado de San Juan de Dios, take in a performance at the Teatro Angela Peralta, and don't be surprised to find yourself a spectator to one of the city's many festivals. If you love art and artifacts, don't miss the Bellas Artes art museum and school nor the textile mill-turned-art studio complex Fabrica La Aurora.

When you're not exploring the city, unwind at the charming Rosewood San Miguel de Allende in one of the many colonial-style rooms. Each comes with a king bed dressed in Italian linens, a full marble bathroom and views of either the city or garden. Or book a deluxe one-bedroom suite at the Belmond Casa de Sierra Nevada and enjoy its quarry-stone fireplace and private patio with plunge pool.

satisfying mix of travel, relaxation and entertainment on a luxuriously appointed ship. Today you can choose from megaships that hold a few thousand passengers to smaller, more exclusive vessels. Destinations and itinerary options abound. While Caribbean cruises are bestsellers, you can also cruise the Pacific Coast's wine country or head abroad to the French Riviera and Mediterranean.

Boutique cruises in smaller ships that can enter smaller ports are increasingly popular, notes Matuszewski. He cites the French cruise line PONANT as an example. It takes the idea of smaller ships to heart. Promising guests a five-star cruise in a five-star environment, PONANT's small-scale luxury yachts can access smaller harbors and ports of call than their larger counterparts. The cruise line's yachts have fewer cabins than traditional luxury liners, which affords greater privacy and relaxation.

No matter where your dream destination is, it's time you visit it in real life and not just when you sleep.

Perfect for a day trip to caper through the gardens and sculptures, the UMLAUF hosts highly anticipated events every year, like the upcoming Garden Party on Thursday, April 25, this year with a new twist. Amidst the fine wine and decadent bites we've come to know and love for the past 21 years, the UMLAUF has invited performers from all over our city to orchestrate performances throughout the Garden. For the perfect holistay and a night you won't soon forget, start with a nice dinner in the city before heading out to the can't-miss event of the year at the UMLAUF, then cap off your night on the town in the heart of Austin. Evoke vacation envy in your friends and family, who will surely think you spent hours planning this dream day, with the secret joy of having this gem so close to home.

LOOKING TO PLAN THE PERFECT STAYCATION
TO GET SOME MUCH-NEEDED AND WELL-DESERVED REST AND RELAXATION?

Look no further than right here in our backyard at the UMLAUF Sculpture Garden & Museum, where art and nature meet in serene harmony. The UMLAUF Sculpture Garden & Museum represents so much that is quintessentially Austin—superb art casually set in a shady garden of native Texas plants and a natural oasis near Barton Springs, located only blocks from the heart of this urban capital city. At this culturally rich arts destination, waterfalls and streams muffle the sounds of traffic, and visitors are transported to our very own not-so-secret garden, enveloped in tranquility in which to contemplate the sculptures or their own thoughts. As the seasons change, so does the natural environment around each sculpture, making this an ideal year-round destination.

Travel Insurance: Is It Worth It?

Insurance That Lets Travelers Take Trips, Not Risks By Jamie Twitchel

You carry insurance for the big things: your car, your home, your health, even your life. That luxury vacation you're taking, on which you may be spending a not-small chunk of change, shouldn't you perhaps insure it too?

Travel insurance most commonly covers expenses incurred by illness, trip cancellation, natural disasters and other emergencies and calamities such as lost or stolen luggage, passport or other travel documents as well as wallets and other personal effects. Insurers may also help policyholders find alternate travel arrangements, provide medical evacuation and replace lost items.

Not many of us want to think about the odds of, say, having an accident or winding up unexpectedly in a severe, devastating weather event when we're on vacation, so the topic of travel insurance doesn't typically come up when planning and booking a trip. After all, no one plans to need travel insurance, so that's money you don't need to spend, right? But maybe travel insurance is worth it, just in case?

Robert Matuszewski, owner of the Austin-area travel agency By Design Travel and a member of the Virtuoso luxury travel advisor network, believes travel insurance is a must for people travelling internationally, primarily to access health care services overseas. Most domestic health insurance policies offer little to no coverage for health services outside the U.S., even in an emergency.

"Once you leave this country, you don't have a right to choose your hospital and doctor services," he warns.

Travel insurance also helps policyholders avoid losing money on high-priced, nonrefundable airline tickets for missed and cancelled flights. Inclement weather, mechanical issues, technical difficulties encountered by an airline or air traffic control, security incidents can and do happen and lead to missed connections as well as cancelled flights.

"My brother lost upwards of $5,000 because he had to cancel his flight to Austria and didn't have trip insurance," Matuszewski recalls.

Travel insurance is optional for domestic travel, especially for travelers using a travel advisor. For example, travel advisors can cancel or move hotel reservations to prevent their clients from losing money for lodging. However, the primary monetary loss for domestic air travel is from nonrefundable airfare, which is typically only a few hundred dollars.

"It's less of a loss if you cancel your trip versus when you're spending four to five times that amount," he advises. "That's when [travel insurance] becomes important."

So when considering a travel insurance policy for your next adventure, consider how much money you've invested in that travel you could lose if something goes wrong and then consider if that amount is acceptable. You may find that investing in travel insurance is a small price to pay to avoid losing big.

Dog Gone House Hunting has partnered up with the non-profit dog rescue and sanctuary Highland Lakes SPCA to help one of their recent rescues, Zach, find a loving forever home.

This beautiful boy is the epitome of meeting cruelty with kindness. When he came to the shelter, Zack was malnourished and suffering from a horrendous neck wound from a deeply embedded collar. He has flourished with good medical treatment and care and is a happy loving dog despite the pain and neglect he suffered. With a playful personality and affection to spare, this big, handsome dog is well-mannered inside and out.

Day-Trippin'

Discover Small-Town Luxury in San Saba

By Cindy Brzostowski

"More than you imagined" is a fitting tourism slogan for San Saba, Texas. If you make the roughly two-hour drive northwest from Austin to this Hill Country town, you might initially be skeptical about how much there is to do and see here. Rest assured the self-proclaimed "Pecan Capital of the World" is full of pleasant surprises—all imbued with small-town charm and hospitality. That's why it's a great destination if you aim to escape Austin for a day or even a weekend.

EXPLORE

San Saba has some choice spots for visitors who yearn for towering trees and green spaces. The tranquil Risien Park, with its plentiful shady pecan trees and trails, runs along the San Saba River and joins together with the San Saba River Nature Park. Closer to the town center is Mill Pond Park, where you can find a spring-fed lake with ducks and geese, a cascading waterfall as well as a water wheel dating back to the late 1800s. Perfect for kiddos is Sunny Beach, a little sandy beach within the park.

While you're exploring the area, make your way out to the Wedding Oak, a giant live oak tree alongside China Creek Road. This arboreal wonder even has its own Texas historical marker, for legend has it that Comanche tribespeople once had council meetings and marriage ceremonies there, and early San Saba residents were also known to hold weddings at the site.

INDULGE

The town may be small, but San Saba can satisfy big appetites at its local eateries. Youngs Burritos & BBQ (806 N High St.) is a low-key local favorite that serves up>>

AUSTIN
Salt Cave

Here at the Austin Salt Cave, we do what's called Halotherapy. During our 45-minuteHalotherapy sessions, we're pumping salt infused air into the salt room. The whole time you're breathing in minuscule salt particles, coating the entirety of your respiratory tract as well as getting it on your skin. The salt then draws moisture to it, reducing inflammation in the respiratory tract and on the skin. Extra fluid pulled into the lungs thins out mucus, allowing it to be more easily expelled. On top of all that, salt is antimicrobial! We are located behind The Grove in Lakeway.

seriously yummy mesquite-smoked barbecue as well as burritos on homemade tortillas and home-style desserts. At the eastern end of town is Diggs Restaurant & Club (1035 E US Highway 190), where hefty plates of juicy steak are the star, but don't overlook its comfort food classics. You may be able to catch some live music while you're there too.

For a quick bite, check out Oliver and Co. (320 E Wallace St.). This delightful bistro is a must for breakfast, a light lunch, a sweet snack or a cup of delicious coffee.

IMBIBE

The Hill Country is known for top-notch wineries, and San Saba is home to two. Wedding Oak Winery (316 E Wallace St.) specializes in Spanish, Italian and certain French varietals. Full-bodied reds and white blends are signatures of Old Man Scary Cellars (302 E Wallace St.). Each establishment makes for a nice spot to sit down and slow down with a vino in hand.

For those who'd prefer a cold glass of beer, Bar D Brewhouse (213 N High St.) has quite the eclectic selection. There's Pecan Bottom Ale, Mesquite Madness, Honey's Wheat and Hoppin' Jalapeno to name just a few. If you can't decide which of its 11 signature beers you'd like, go for the sampler, which comes with a 4-ounce pour of each.

TREAT YOURSELF

A walk along Wallace Street, San Saba's main strip, brings you to the doors of an assortment of shops. Be sure to step inside Harry's Boots (403 E Wallace St.), an expansive Western apparel store in business since 1939. Even if you're not in the market for boots, its picture-perfect shelves upon shelves of cowboy boots is a sight to behold. Next, hop over to J.C. Campbell & Co. Mercantile (318 E Wallace St.) to browse products from more than a dozen local vendors offering jewelry, clothing, antiques, cosmetics and more.

If foodstuffs is what you're after, head to San Saba Olive Oil Company (207 E Wallace St.), where you can sample and purchase olive oils infused with such flavors as garlic-cilantro, habanero, basil and Meyer lemon. Don't miss the unique balsamic vinegars, offered in such flavors as blackberry ginger, chocolate and mango.

A trip to the Pecan Capital of the World isn't complete without a visit to one of its many pecan companies, including Millican Pecan Company (199 CR 100) and Alamo Pecan & Coffee Co. (601 E Wallace St.). From raw and chocolate-dipped nuts to candies, pies and even coffee, you'll be able to find all the pecan-rific goodies your heart desires.

RELAX

Plan to spend the night? You can't do much better than the Dofflemyer Hotel (108 S High St.). Situated in the heart of downtown, this boutique hotel is in a 1913 building that once housed a bank and gentleman's social club. Contemporary comforts and historic touches come together to create stylish, modern accommodations.

A Staycation Getaway Awaits in the Heart of Austin

Want to get out of town without all the hassle? Fortunately, you no longer have to go way out to get away. You only need to go Wayback.

"We love our beautiful, urban Austin but also truly appreciate a little escape to the Texas Hill Country, where it's quieter, the air is fresh and time slows," state Vicki Bly and Sydney Sue, the mother-daughter team behind The Wayback Cafe and Cottages, located less than 30 minutes from downtown, off Bee Cave Road.

If you haven't noticed the establishment, which opened in late 2018, then you'll grasp immediately why this boutique hotel is a prime destination for your next staycation. The eight cottages and the café—as well as the saltwater pool, cabana and firepit—are nestled amongst sturdy oaks, well back from the busy road. There's also a drive-through coffee hut near the front of the property that serves caffeine and other fuel to commuters.

The cottages that dot the property range in size from 350 to 450 square feet. The décor evokes an easygoing, Southern-meets-vintage feeling, and some of the items in the cottages came from local antique stores and local Craigslist sellers. "Each vintage piece is from a different era, but they all evoke a nostalgic feeling," says Bly. "We looked for pieces that were unique, but one thing for sure is that they all have a story to share."

Seven of the eight cottages each has at least one queen-size bed, and two of them have private backyards. One of the cottages meets Americans with Disabilities Act Standards. If you're aiming for a romantic ambiance for your staycation, ask about cottage #8, which has a fireplace and a kitchen. All units offer breathtaking views of the Hill Country to remind guests they really have escaped the city.

Guests can avail themselves to The Wayback Café, which offers seasonal farm-to-table fare for breakfast, lunch and supper Tuesdays through Saturdays and serves up Sunday brunch from 9 a.m. until 2 p.m. You can also snag a picnic lunch or a drink to enjoy poolside or on the lawn.

The owners drew on memories of their family vacations when planning The Wayback, and getaways to the Sunshine State figured prominently, specifically Seaside, Florida. Of this special destination Sue shares, "The streets are cobblestone, the town center is perfection, and people seem to be living in another time. It's a happy place, and we want people to feel this way at The Wayback."

Find the Wayback Café and Cottages at 9601 Bee Cave Road and online at waybackaustin.com.

Avail yourself to a saltwater pool, farm-to-table fare and a comfy yard at Bly and Sue's brainchild, The Wayback.

Palling Around

Great Group Getaways for Gals, Guys By Lauren Jones

Now that spring is here, it's time to pack a bag, rally together your close friends and take a break from routine for a few days—or longer. Whether you've got in mind a restful weekend of pampering with your best friends or a grand adventure with your best buds, these destinations are sure to make for some great times and great memories.

FOR THE GALS

Ladies, you deserve a vacation! Check out our Texas and out-of-state picks for some of the best shopping, rest and relaxation and gourmet dining.

HOUSTON

While Houston may not be on everyone's travel bucket list, consider making the drive a few hours southeast for a weekend trip with your girlfriends. Stay at either the Hotel Granduca Houston, voted one of the top hotels in Texas by Conde Nast Traveler and U.S. News & World Report, or The Post Oak Hotel at Uptown Houston, to enjoy spa days, time by the pool and over-the-top guest rooms. The Post Oak Hotel even has its own private helipad. Head to the Galleria, the city's 2.4-million-square-foot shopping mall, or become an art critic for the day at The Menil Collection.

SAN JUAN, PUERTO RICO

Although still recovering from the hurricanes of 2017, San Juan, Puerto Rico, is quite the travel destination and offers a piece of paradise close to home. Stay at La Concha Renaissance Resort for its city and beach views, or opt for AC Hotel San Juan Condado, situated right on Condado beach. During the day, put on those hiking boots and take a tour through the portions of El Yunque National Forest that have reopened, or trade in your outdoor gear for a snorkel and enjoy an afternoon on the water.

ISLA HOLBOX

Isla Holbox (pronounced hole-bosh, not hole-box) is a 26-mile island north of Mexico's Yucatan Peninsula, and it's the ideal tropical girls' trip destination. The island is still relatively unknown as a tourist destination, so before it becomes a hot spot, book your flight to Cancún and then catch a ride to Chiquilá, where you board the ferry to this isla bonita. The carless island is a nature lover's dream and is home to flamingos and pelicans. As the sun rises, hit the water for whale shark-viewing or to learn how to kiteboard.

FOR THE GUYS

While there are plenty of spots to consider if you and ya boyz are looking to get your sweat on this spring, these cities are tops for outdoor adventures and more.

DALLAS

Just three hours north of Austin, head to Big D for an excellent three-day weekend with the guys. Consider staying at the Four Seasons Resort and Club Dallas at Las Colinas, located within reach of both downtown Dallas and Fort Worth and situated on an 18-hole, 70-par golf course. Closer to town, tee up at Stevens Park Golf Course or at Cowboys Golf Club in Grapevine, the first and only NFL franchise-themed golf club. If weather permits, hang out at Klyde Warren Park and grab a bite from one of the food trucks, or book a brewery tour at Deep Ellum Brewing Company or Peticolas Brewing Company.

ASPEN

If whitewater rafting, horseback riding and hiking is your idea of a vacation, Aspen is where you should go. For a relaxing stay at one of the finest hotels in town, check into The St. Regis Aspen Resort, nestled at the base of Aspen Mountain and located within walking distance of downtown. From lounging poolside to enjoying the scenery from the Silver Queen Gondola, there's nothing quite like Colorado in the springtime. >>

It goes without saying that all these great destinations have something for everyone, so if your travel gaggle has members all along the gender identity spectrum, they'll all have a good time.

SAN DIEGO

A quick flight from Austin, sunny San Diego has much to offer. Book a room at The Lodge at Torrey Pines, which Sunset magazine ranked as the top hotel in the West in 2017. In addition to the resort's gracious amenities, it offers easy access to the Torrey Pines State Reserve, a 2,000-acre park with more than eight miles of hiking trails, and the beaches of La Jolla Shores. The Del Mar Racetrack, Balboa Park and Old Town San Diego are nearby as well.

Private Jet Charters Offer Friendlier Way to Fly

By Jamie Twitchel

Flying on a commercial airline can easily be anywhere from an unpleasant to a hellish experience. Getting to the airport at least two hours before boarding, waiting in line to get through security, waiting at the gate, trudging down the jetway to board only to find precious little overhead bin space is left, dealing with seatmates who don't seem to understand the concept of personal boundaries or common courtesy, getting delayed because of air traffic issues or mechanical concerns....

Now imagine bypassing security altogether and heading straight to the terminal 15 minutes before takeoff. Imagine relaxing in plush seats with plenty of legroom, enjoying sumptuous catering options and having a flight staff attending to every need. All this luxury, comfort and convenience is possible on a private jet. You don't have to be a world leader, celebrity, C-level executive or member of the ultra-high-net-worth class to make this fantasy a reality, for this experience can be yours by chartering a private jet.

Like all upscale experiences, private jet charters come at a cost, which varies by company, plane preference and destination. For example, at Stratos Jet Charters (stratosjets.com) charters begin at $2,000 an hour for turboprop planes that hold five to nine passengers and go up to $14,250 an hour for a heavy jet (think Gulfstream IV and V) that can hold up to 19 passengers.

Charter companies Pentastar Aviation (pentastaraviation.com) and Air Charter Service Inc. (aircharterserviceusa.com) have similar pricing structures, and price quotes are available on demand. Pricing often excludes incidentals such as fuel, catering and other optional services, daily aircraft fees, airport landing fees, crew charges and more, so read the fine print before purchasing.

If you have a flexible itinerary or are willing to share the plane, you can often find deals on empty leg flights (when the plane would otherwise fly a leg of a trip empty) for predetermined routes. Charter Jet Airlines (charterjetairlines.com), for example, offers empty leg trips starting at just under $3,000 per seat. Or head to JetSmarter (jetsmarter.com), where prices range from $1,185 to $3,795 per seat depending on destination.

That commercial airline ticket may be easier on your wallet, but that monetary savings may pale in comparison to the cost of time, convenience and comfort—and sanity. If the experience of chartering a private jet takes the stress out of flying, then it is worth every penny.

All prices cited are from February 2019, and may not reflect current pricing.

Pathways to Better Sleep

Catch Those Zzzzs You've Been Missing By Anna Johnston

Not getting enough sleep increases your risks for heart disease, obesity and diabetes as well as anxiety, depression and Alzheimer's disease. To get the sleep that's critical for health and well-being, you may need to ditch some bad pre-bedtime habits and add helpful steps to your bedtime routine.

Block the blue. Many studies have demonstrated that the blue light emitted by LED screens inhibits the body's ability to produce the sleep-inducing hormone melatonin. Remove that sleep obstacle by saying good night to your smartphone, tablet, laptop, desktop monitor and TV and e-reader at least an hour before your own bedtime. If the thought of ignoring your phone provokes FOMO—the fear of missing out—then tell your contacts about your new bedtime protocol, and know those social media posts can wait until morning.

Breathe. Quality breathing is necessary for quality sleep. Unfortunately, many of us are shallow breathers. Among the adverse effects of shallow breathing is its stimulation of the sympathetic nervous system, that part of the nervous system that triggers the fight-or-flight response. Unless countered with deeper breathing from the diaphragm, shallow breathing keeps the body and mind keyed up, and thus you have difficulty sleeping.

A variety of mindful breathing exercises—sometimes taken from pranayama, the centuries-old Indian practice of breath control—are available to help you learn to deepen and lengthen your breath. One example is the 4-7-8 breathing exercise from integrative medicine advocate Dr. Andrew Weil. First, inhale through your nose as you silently count to four, then retain the breath as you count to seven. Finally, exhale through your mouth as you count to eight. The deep, slow breathing stimulates the para sympathetic nervous system that counters the sympathetic nervous system so you can unwind.

Release the kinks. Are your shoulders hunched up or rounded forward? Are you unconsciously gripping your buttocks or clenching your jaw? Sinking into bed, unfortunately, does not cause all your muscular tension to relax instantly, and thus you sleep poorly or can't sleep at all because you can't get comfortable.

Just as you stretch a bit before working out, a bit of stretching before bed helps your body begin to relax for sleep. Several yoga asanas (poses) not only help you release tension but also help you shift into a more introspective, relaxed frame of mind. One of the simplest is Balasana, or child's pose. Basically it's the fetal position except that you're face down on the floor rather than lying on your side and that your arms are extended forward as they rest on the floor. If your shoulders are really tense, let your arms rest alongside your folded knees, palms up. You can keep your thighs and knees together to let your torso rest upon them, or you can separate your folded legs just enough to nestle your torso between them. If putting your forehead on the floor is uncomfortable due to neck or shoulder tension, place a folded hand towel under it.

If you're on your feet all day, you might find relief with Viparita Karani, or legs-up-the-wall pose. All you need is some open wall and floor space and perhaps a folded bath towel or blanket to lend support to your hips as they rest on the floor, your buttocks close to the wall, and maybe another folded towel to support your head. Your extended legs get to take a load off and get a gentle stretch as you rest them against the wall. Your entire upper body gets a break from gravity as you let the floor do the work of support it. To make space for all that deep breathing, place your arms in a saguaro cactus-like position.

A classic final asana before bed is Savasana, corpse pose. Lie on the floor or on your bed, stretch your legs out and a little wider than hips' width apart, and extend your arms alongside your torso, palms up, with the hands far enough away from you to allow your shoulder blades to separate and settle. Close your eyes, breathe and let go of your body and your thoughts as best you can for about five minutes.

These are just a few techniques you can try to make your own pathway to sleep more beneficial. If you continue to suffer from poor sleep, you might have some underlying health issue, such as sleep apnea, that should be addressed by your medical professional.

Music therapy in the garden promotes healing; Christopher's Chair, right, symbolizes Wohlers' legacy

Christopher's Legacy

Agency Works to End Child Abuse

The sensory gym at the Lakeway office is another therapeutic tool

Thirty years ago, the death of toddler Christopher Wohlers from abuse galvanized the Austin community to come together to do better—to do more—for children suspected to be abuse victims. Thus the Center for Child Protection was founded.

The nonprofit organization helps young abuse victims tell their stories and start the healing process. With offices in Austin and Lakeway, it's the first stop for Travis County children who are suspected victims of sexual or physical abuse as well as for children who've witnessed a violent crime. The Center provides a kid-friendly, kid-focused facility where these young victims can go for medical exams and to speak with specially trained forensic interviewers. They also receive counseling and other therapy and support services while their cases are being investigated and adjudicated.

The Center is part of the Travis County Child Protection Team, which also came to be as a result of community outcry after Wohlers' death. The team includes the Texas Department of Family and Protective Services, Dell Children's Medical Center, the Travis County District Attorney's Office and Sheriff's Office as well as the police departments of Travis County-area cities and schools. All these agencies work together to investigate and prosecute a case so they can efficiently help these children and their protective families.

Because one child in ten is sexually abused by age 18, the organization tirelessly works with the community to prevent abuse. It offers a variety of free training opportunities, such as Stewards of Children, a scientifically proven, evidence-based training program for adults to prevent, recognize and respond to the sexual abuse of a child. The Center also hosts a variety of parenting skills workshops and training programs for adults who work with children to learn how identify the signs of abuse.

All services are provided free of charge to the children and their protective caregivers.

To accomplish so much of its work, the Center relies on the generosity of the community. Volunteers can take part in training and then work directly with children and families, and they also help with the organization's ancillary operations and events. To help meet its financial needs, the Center holds annual fundraisers that are highlights of the Austin social calendar, including Dancing with the Stars Austin and PlayBingo Ladies Luncheon.

Jordan Hall, Louie Williams, Amy Wentworth

DANCE INSTITUTE DANCERS EARN $36,000

In January Dance Institute sent three dancers—Jordan Hall, Amy Wentworth and Louie Williams—to New York City to attend Destiny Rising, an evening of dance held at The Joyce Theater benefitting the New York City Dance Alliance Foundation's College Scholarship Program.

During the event the foundation awarded 10 cash scholarships, and the Dance Institute trio each claimed one. Jordan Hall received the largest amount awarded, $16,000. Amy Wentworth received $12,000, and Louie Williams received $8,000. They are invited back to perform in the 2020 Destiny Rising gala.

Linda Holland, Dance Institute's director, selected the three students, who are all high school juniors. They each then had to submit an application and an essay about her or his dance career and goals. While in New York City, they took audition classes in ballet and modern dance at New York City Dance Alliance (NYCDA).

"I am incredibly proud of the training we provide at Dance Institute," says Holland. "Our dancers are achieving their goals and being accepted to programs all over the world, from The Royal Ballet School, USC, Juilliard, Alonzo King LINES Ballet, Pacific Northwest Ballet, School of American Ballet, American Ballet Theater and Bolshoi Summer Intensive."

Past Dance Institute scholarship recipients include Dannon O'Brien, who was awarded half tuition to Marymount Manhattan; Kele Roberson, awarded $25,000; and Sydney James and Olivia Schuh, who each received $6,000.

"I am forever grateful to [NYCDA Executive Director] Joe Lanteri and NYCDA for the work they do with their College Scholarship Program," says Holland.

SUZANNE STONE

"I'm passionate about changing the world, one corner at a time," says Suzanne Stone, who is the executive director of Susan G. Komen® Greater Central and East Texas, formed in January when the Austin and the East Central Texas Komen affiliates merged. Studies at Texas Christian University brought her to the Lone Star State, and she still owns and wears her first pair of cowboy boots that she bought within 24 hours of arriving.
